PLANNING FOR CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS IN CARE

A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY

Department of Social Welfare

December 1983

This Bibliography is compiled by Digby Hildreth and arranged by Damon White as a PEP Project for the Social Work Training Unit, Department of Social Welfare in 1983.

This Bibliography has been prepared for those social workers, recently appointed and involved in planning for children in care, who are interested in recent developments in this field and may wish to investigate further, the rationale for planning and its implications for social work practice.

All the works listed are available from the DSW Library, though you may find copies in other libraries. We have starred (*) those articles and books as recommended reading. Photocopies of these articles are available, on request, from:

> The Librarian
> Department of Social Welfare
> Head Office
> Private Bag
> WELLINGTON.

We would like your help for the next edition.
We have not been able to do a comprehensive search of the recent literature and informing us, of any articles or books that you have found to be relevant and helpful, would be appreciated.

Pak Yoong
Training Supervisor (Social Work)

Decmeber 1983.

Planning for Children and Young Persons In Care

Most of the article summaries are taken from the authors' prefatory abstracts.

DSW H.O. Library: 727-666 ext 714 and 724

Books   – The H.O. library's classification nos. are included.
         – Izumi, Jones and Biesecker; may be difficult to borrow, as the library is awaiting copies.
Journals – May be held at other libraries, but all those listed here, are held at Head Office Library.

USA : p 1
UK : p7
NZ & Aust. p.10.

U.S.A.

CARBINO,   Rosemarie – 'Group work with natural parents in permanency planning', Social Work with Groups, vol. 5, no. 4. pp. 7-30.

             Study of the uses of group work with parents in permanency planning services; presents a conceptual framework and literature review and an example of group work with parents of children in foster placement.

COHN,   Anne H., and De GRAAF, Beverley – 'Assessing Case Management in the Child Abuse Field'; Journal of Social Science Research, Vol. 5 (1/2), 1982. pp. 29-43 (3318)

             The authors have adapted the audit techniques in the medical field to assess quality case management. A guideline for future studies in this area.

FRIEDMAN,   Robert M, BARON, Alex, LARDIER, Sharon and QUICK, Judith - 'Length of time in foster care, a measure in need of anaylysis', Social Work, Nov, 1982, pp 489-503 (3180).

A measure frequently used to evaluate foster care systems is the average length of time in care. This article discusses the important variables that may be omitted.

* GAMBRILL,   Eileen D., and STEIN, Theodore J. - 'Decision making and case management: Achieving continuity of care for children in out-of-home placement', The Challenge of Parthership: Working with parents of children in foster care, Maluccio and Sinanoglu. (eds.) Child Welfare League of America, New York, 1981. (362.733)

Describes and illustrates the approach, to achieving continuity of care for children, that was tested and refined in the Alameda Project.

* GAMBRILL,   Eileen D., and WILTSE, Kermit T. - 'Foster Care: Plans and actualities', Public Welfare, vol. 32, no. 2, pp. 12-21.

From a study focused on restoration processes of children to natural parents as one crucial exist point from foster care; the Analysis is regarded by the authors as a step towards their long-term goal: to design a decision-making guide for social workers in foster care.

IZUMI,   Susan - Case Planning, The Dellcrest Resource Centre, Toronto, 1981.

A manual which examines the major concepts, the sequences in case planning and offers a guideline for the design of a case planning system.

* JONES,   Martha L., and Biesecker John L. - 'Training in Permanency Planning: Using What Is Known', Child Welfare, Vol. 59, No. 8, 1980, pp 481-489.

A framework (the TRIPP manuals) to bring the knowledge to achieve permanency goals to training social workers and their supervisors.

JONES,   Martha L., and BIESECKER, John L. - Goal Planning in Children and Youth Services, Virginia Department of Welfare, 1979, for TRIPP (Training Resources in Permanent Planning Project); Supported by U.S. Department of HEW, Grant No. 90-C-1444.

Training manual consisting of five lessons designed to give experience in writing and developing permanent plans for children.

JONES,   Martha L., and BIESECKER, John L. - Permanency Planning Guide for Children and Youth Services, Virginia Department of Welfare, 1979, for TRIPP (Training Resources in Permanent Planning Project); Supported by U.S. Department of HEW, Grant No. 90-C-1444.

Quick reference guide for caseworkers and supervisors, with checklists and outlines, for workers to use in making permanent plans for children.

JONES,   Martha L., and BIESECKER, John L. - Trainer's Manual For Goal Planning and Permanency Planning in Children and Youth Services, Virginia Department of Welfare, 1979, for TRIPP (Training Resources in Permanent Planning Project); Supported by U.S. Department of HEW, Grant No. 90-C-1444.

Manual for trainers who have had goal and permanency planning training and direct experience in working with children and youth services.

LAHTI   Janet. - 'A Follow-Up Study of Foster Children in Permanent Placements', Social Service Review, Dec., 1982, pp. 556-571 (3289).

               Evaluates the stability and quality of the Oregon Project's placements.

MALUCCIO,   Anthony N., and SINANOGLU, Paula A. - 'Social Work with parents of children in foster care: A bibliography', Child Welfare, Vol. 60, No. 5, 1980, pp. 275-303.

               Valuable tool for locating materials and identifying issues involving services for, and practice with, parents of children in foster care.

* MALUCCIO,   Anthony N., and MARLOW, Wilma D. - 'The case for the contract', Social Work. Vol. 19, No. 1, 1974, pp. 28-36.

               Contributes to developing theory for practice in the use of the contract as an effective tool in social work intervention.

MITCHELL,   Carol Achermann. - 'Planning with parents: The use of groups in residential treatment', Social Work with Groups,
               - Vol. 5, No. 4, 1982, pp. 31-45.

               Explores some problems and solutions to the issue of parental involvement in a residential treatment programme.

* PIKE,   Victor - 'Permanent planning for foster children: The Oregon Project', Children Today, Vol. 5, No. 6, 1976 pp.
               22-25, 41.

               The Oregon Project's Director outlines its principles, procedures and outcome; illustrated with case studies.

PIKE, Victor, DOWNS, Susan, EMLEN, Arthur, DOWNS, Glen and CASE, Denise - Permanent planning for children in foster care: A handbook for social workers, Regional Research Institute for Human Resources, Portland. State University, Portland, Oregon. U.S. Department of HEW. Children's Bureau, 1977. DHEW Publication No. (OHDS) 78-30124. (362.733)

Practical reference to assist child welfare workers to analyse placement options available, evaluate the factors pertinent in choosing an appropriate plan, and understand the casework and legal techniques for implementing it.

ROONEY, Ronald H. - 'Permanency planning: Boon for all children?' Social Work, Vol. 27, No. 2, 1982, pp. 152-158.

Examines the issue of whose interests are served by permanency planning and reviews the current status of permanency planning efforts, the costs involved, and the clients and community groups benefited. Suggests guidelines for programmes.

* SEABURY, Brett, A. - 'Negotiating sound Contracts with Clients' Public Welfare, 37:2, Spring, 1979, pp 33-39. Reprinted as Reading 7, 'Things that Matter: influences on helping relationships', Rubenstein and Block, (eds.), Macmillan, New York, 1982. pp. 99-106 (361.32 THI).

The purpose of this article is to define contracting more precisely by identifying those circumstances in which contracting fails.

STEIN, Theodore J. - 'Early intervention in foster care', Public Welfare, Vol. 34, No. 2, 1976, pp. 39-44.

Describes the Alameda Project and presents data from its first year.

* STEIN,   Theodore J., and GAMBRILL, Eileen D. - 'Facilitating decision making in foster care: The Alameda Project' Social Service Review, Vol. 51, No. 3, 1977, pp. 502-513.

Results from the Alameda Project after two years, with discussion of case planning, the use of written contracts, and issues related to service delivery.

* STEIN   Theodore, J. GAMBRILL, Eileen, D., and WILTSE, Kermit T. - 'Foster Care: The Use of Contracts', Public Welfare, Fall, 1974, pp. 20-25.

The purpose of this article is to discuss the use of contracts with natural parents as a tool for encouraging parental participation in planning for their children and early decision-making.

STEIN,   Theodore J., GAMBRILL, Eileen D., and WILTSE, Kermit T. - 'Dividing case management in foster family cases', Child Welfare, Vol. 56, No. 5, 1977, pp. 321-331.

Describes issues related to the approach used in the Alameda Project, where case management was divided between two workers, one responsible for intensive services to natural parents, the other concerned with the child in the foster home.

STEIN,   Theodore J., GAMBRILL, Eileen D., and WILTSE, Kermit T. - Children in Foster Homes: Achieving continuity of care, Praeger, New York, 1978 (362.733).

Studies the continuity of care for children in out-of-home placement; compares with more traditional methods, the effectiveness of a systematic case-management procedure using behavioural intervention methods, with the objective of developing a decision-making framework that can be used by child care workers, supervisors, administrators and social work educators. Also offers an analysis of the barriers to the introduction of systematic case management procedures that are found in child welfare agencies.

WILTSE,   Kermit T. - 'Decision-making needs in foster care', Children Today, Vol. 5, No. 6, 1976, pp. 2-5, 43.

Studies agency decision-making processes that result in children entering, remaining in, and exiting from foster care, and the tendency for them to drift.

U. K.

ABAFA   PLANNING for children in long-term care. the Association of British Adoption and Fostering Agencies, London, 1977. (362.73).

Instructor's pack to enable a wide range of people to organise a course on planning for children who need substitute family care. Contents include 1. Children who wait for substitute homes. 2. Identifying and planning for children. 3. Working with natural parents. 4. Working with children. 5. Working with substitute families. 6. Planning placements.

* ADCOCK,   Margaret - 'Permanent placement: a right, Adoption and Fostering, The Journal of The Association of British Adoption and Fostering Agencies, Vol. 99, No. 1, 1980, pp. 21-24.

Problems associated with long-term care; part of a paper, 'The Rights of Children', given at the ABAFA Legal Group's International Year of the Child seminar in Nov. 1979.

DOWNES, Celia – 'Assessing adolescents for time-limited foster care', Adoption and Fostering, Vol. 6, No. 4, 1982, pp. 26-30.

The issue of how difficult adolescents might be assessed for time-limited family placement, using Attachment theory, describing each adolescent in terms of their existing attachments and compares the 'passively dependent' with the 'fiercely self reliant'.

GOLDBERG, E. Matilda, and WARBURTON, R. William. – Ends and Means in Social Work, National Institute Social Services Library, No. 35, George Allen and Unwin, London, 1979 (361.942).

Describes the development and outcome of a case review system in a town in southern England.

✱ GOLDBERG, E. Matilda, WALKER, David, and ROBINSON, James – 'Exploring the task – centered casework method', Social Work Today, Vol. 9, No. 2, 1977, pp. 9-14.

Reports on a small project in an area office of a Buckinghamshire Social Service Department where a group of social workers explored the task-centered casework method 'fairly systematically'.

HUSSELL, Chris and MONAGHAN, Bernard – 'Child care planning in Lambeth', Adoption and Fostering, Vol. 6, No. 2, 1982 pp 21-25.

Describes how field workers in a London borough translated theory into practice : the objectives of permanent placement and the belief that no child should be in care for more than two years.

* McKAY, Margaret - 'Planning for permanent placement', Adoption and Fostering, Vol. 4, No. 1, 1980 pp. 19-21.

Contributes to the current examination of child care practice based on work in East Lothian and calls for a redefinition of long-term fostering.

TRISELIOTIS Dr John - 'Identity and security in adoption and long-term fostering', Adoption and Fostering, Vol. 7, No. 1, 1983, pp. 22-31.

Draws from a larger study which contrasted those people who grew up adopted, with those people who grew up in long-term fostering; so as to examine, mainly, issues in identity formation.

TRISELIOTIS John. ed. - New developments in foster care and adoption. Routledge and Kegan Paul, London, 1980 (362.733).

New developments which are of direct relevance to social workers, e.g. the concepts derived from the special projects set up to find families for hard-to-place children.

N.Z. and AUST

* McCOTTER, Denzil - 'Permanency planning: an overview', Australian Child and Family Welfare, Vol. 6, No. 4, 1982, pp. 3-7.

Concise summary of the pioneering Oregon Project and compares the efforts (in other countries) to develop permanency planning.

MELTON, Ted - Child Care Co-ordinating Committee Newsletter. Auckland, Vol. 1, 1982.

Former A.D. (S.W.) at Papakura describes the experience of being part of the "Planning for children entering care" pilot scheme undertaken there.

Date Due

15 APR 1995